How Could a Focused Manufacturing Review Help My Business?

MAS Focused Manufacturing Reviews are 100% grant subsidised. We can help you find the solution to a specific manufacturing problem that you are unable to tackle in-house. You can contact us with virtually any issue or topic and we will find the most suitable expert to help you.

We can also provide your business with access to a high level of expertise and knowledge residing in universities and manufacturing & technology centres which can be difficult to track down in normal circumstances. Depending on the nature of the review, it may involve a visit to your company, be conducted off-site or involve a combination of both.

There are many ways in which the Focused Manufacturing Review can be used. Examples of how MAS clients have used it in the past include:

- Investigate how lean principles may be applied to my business and what benefits will be gained.
- Investigate the potential to reduce waste and energy costs of a powder coating plant.
- Identify what is needed to allow existing thread rolling machines to roll tougher and harder alloys.
- What is the potential for diverting the wood waste produced during manufacture to power a heat/power installation?
- Establish throughput capacity and recommend how to achieve line balancing to improve customer service.

Who Will Conduct the Review?

The MAS Focused Manufacturing Review will be carried out by one of our approved manufacturing specialists who has the expertise to address the specific research issue.

How Will the Review Findings Be Presented to Me?

After the visit, you will be provided with a full written report outlining actions you can take to maintain or improve your manufacturing performance. MAS can provide further help towards addressing these actions through a 50% grant subsidised Manufacturing Improvement Project.
